POLITICAL AND CAPITOL NEWS

A few forest fires in various sections of the state have been reported to the forest and game wardens and additional warnings are being sent out to use the utmost care in setting fires.

Chase S. Osborn states that he does not expect to devote much time to the upper peninsula, expecting that to take care of himself while he devotes his time to the country below the straits. Then, too, there are those who believe Mr. Osborn's method of campaigning would not be popular in all sections of the upper peninsula. In lower Michigan he denounces Cannonism and Aldrichism. Above the straits he has not been making any such campaign, evidently believing that regular republicanism would be more popular in that strong republican section.

At a recent meeting of the state board of health Dr. F. W. Shumway was elected delegate to the national state and territorial boards of health, which will be held in Washington, April 28, 29 and 30.

Lieut. Gov. Patrick H. Kelley, candidate for governor, is steadily at work and as the time draws nearer to the primaries he believes his outlook for the nomination is growing stronger and that he will receive the nomination without difficulty.

Elliott Schantz, who has been in the state tax commissioner's department for the past two years, has gone to Detroit to enter the office of the Burrows' senatorial headquarters in the capacity of stenographer.

It's getting almost time for Amos S. Musselman to give a few more amendments to his platform. Local option—not prohibition—seems to be a good theme for him, and now that a number more of "dry" counties have been added to the state, it's up to him to speak up.

The last monthly report of State Game and Fish Warden Pierce shows that 105 complaints were filed against alleged violators of the state fish and game laws and 57 convictions secured. Of this number 17 cases were started for violations of the game laws and 46 for violations of the fish laws. A total of $1,264.52 was collected in fines.

That the public drinking cup must go is the opinion of 15 railroad representatives who held a meeting last week in the office of Dr. F. W. Shumway of the state board of health. It is probable that steps will be taken to abolish the cup on trains and in stations.

Sylvester Greusel of Hastings, factory inspector for the fifth district, appointed to succeed Isaac Bloom of Kalamazoo, has started upon his duties. He is well qualified for the position, being a practical factory and machine man.

Burton farmers, Shiawassee county, are facing arrest upon complaint of the pure food department. Milk Inspector Howe secured samples and they did not stand the tests.

Crops are better now than they were a year ago, according to a report issued last week by the state department. Wheat is reported at 88 per cent as compared to 76 last year; rye 92 as against 83 in 1909. Meadows are in better condition and the fruit crop is fully two weeks ahead of what it was a year ago. Frosts are all that are feared.

Land Commissioner Huntley Russell has a new scheme for booming the upper counties of the state. He proposes that the public domain commission shall set aside in each county 40 acres of state reserve land to be turned over to horticulturists for experimental orchards where the farmers of that county can be shown how to plant and care for fruit trees and make fruit growing a profitable investment.

A list of 44 foreign liquor firms has been sent Prosecutor Brown of Kent county by Attorney General Bird, which it is alleged are doing business in that county without having first observed the state law in paying a license and filing a bond. The prosecutor is requested to investigate and, if the facts are as reported, to start proceedings against the agents of these firms. Auditor General Fuller furnishes the list who represent the state in the collection of $500 license fee.

Two Ingham county milk men landed in the toils of the law last week, one man being charged with watering the milk he sold and the other with skimming it. The pure food department caused the arrests.

William Clendenning of Marquette has been appointed to succeed the late Peter Fitzpatrick, one of the oldest deputy factory inspectors in Michigan from the point of years, and begins work May 1.

ENJOYABLE PARTY.

Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, the Fischer dancing party at the Idle Hour theatre was well attended last Wednesday evening. The music was exceptionally fine, and it was one of the most enjoyable dancing parties of the year.

"Maxworthy" to be Here.

The celebrated trotting stallion, "Maxworthy," owned by the Waud Bros. of Kalamazoo, will make the season of 1910 at Paw Paw, commencing with Monday, May 2, will be at C. H. Hick's barn each Monday and Tuesday during the season. This celebrated stallion is well known to Paw Paw horsemen. He is a grand individual and numbers among his ancestors some of the most celebrated horses the world has ever known. He is superb in action, classy in appearance and cannot help but appeal to lovers of first class horses.

Dierrell's Jug.

A quaint political souvenir which belonged to Lord Beaconsfield has come under notice by the death of Thomas Stallwood of High Wycombe, who was for years employed at Hughenden manor, says the London Daily Mail. It is a large jug of Shropshire manufacture, capable of holding three quarts. Twelve of the pattern were specially manufactured in Shrewsbury to commemorate the return of 12 Conservatives for Salop in the general election of 1841. Mr. Dierrell was one of the dozen, and each member received a jug. Lord Beaconsfield's was accidentally broken in the removal of furniture from Hughenden after his death and cast away, and so it came into the possession of Stallwood, who had the fragments pieced together.

An Author's Inspiration.

My inspirations for "Quo Vadis," that early and most popular of all my productions, had their source in my study of three famous masterpieces. First of all, in the works of Tacitus, with which, of all the Latin classics, I am best acquainted. Then I was deeply influenced by Chateaubriand's "Genie du Christianisme," especially by what he has written about the early Christian martyrs. But I owe most of all to the English cardinal, Wiseman's "Fabiola: The Church of the Catacombs," an able and picturesque story which exercised over me a powerful fascination from dawning boyhood.—Henry Stenkiewicz, in London Chronicle.

A Model Man.

Periodically there are published the names of celebrities who were famous before they were 35. But genius is exceptional. The great mass of people might enjoy the facts about some desirable model whom they may hope to equal some time if they live and learn. For their consideration, therefore, we here set down the achievements of a certain man. At 20 our hero had learned to bathe properly and to sleep with the window open; at 25 he had loved a wholesome girl and married her; at 35 he had mastered his temper and learned to reserve judgment; at 45 his children were proud of him; at 60 he has achieved kindness, moderation and the respect of his neighbors.—Collier's Weekly.

FERRER BEFORE THE COURT

An Eye-Witness Describes Bearing of the Doomed Man in Presence of His Judges.

"The whole thing was stage managed like a drama and its end was not less certain and foreseen, says Percival Gibbon in McClure's in writing of the Ferrer trial.

"They brought Ferrer in and placed him at the bar of the court, with a sentry beside him; and the spectators rustled and nudged to see him close at hand. Under their curious eyes the doomed man shrank and was uneasy. People saw him with astonishment. He had the manner and all the outward look of an elderly clerk or a country schoolmaster, of anything subordinate and plodding and uninspired. He was middle-aged and of the middle stature, with a round, dull face and a short, pointed gray beard. There was nothing to distinguish him from thousands of men in Spain today in whom the national character of reserve and incuriousness are exaggerated to a sort of atrophy of the faculties. He showed no trace of that fervency and power that had made him the enemy of the government and sustained him through years of war against the bureaucracy and clericalism in Catalonia. It was only when at some turn in the proceedings he looked up quickly that people were able to see that the eyes in the patient face were steady and of a peculiar brightness.

"A military court does not pronounce sentence at the end of the case, and when Ferrer was taken out from court no word of death had been spoken. But he knew and the others knew that he went forth doomed."

POSITIONS FOUND FOR ALL

Ingenious Scheme of Philanthropist That Worked Well for All Parties Concerned.

After the civil war many freedmen were sent from the southern states to the north to find employment, and exactly how to aid them was often quite a difficult problem. In one case, for example, a Boston clergyman found himself responsible for the welfare of 30 negro women, coming by boat from Virginia. Time was passing, and he did not know where he could put them. On the day before the steamer was due he chanced to meet the late Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale on the street.

To him he told his story. Dr. Hale seemed puzzled. "I'm sure I don't know what to suggest," he said. "I could give you five dollars, but that wouldn't do much good. Let me think."

Finally this scheme was evolved. It was decided to insert an advertisement in one of the local newspapers to the effect that 30 cooks were coming from Virginia. Dr. Hale, who doubtless was aware of the domestic troubles of the Boston ladies, went away smiling, and the other posted off to the office of the Transcript.

The next day Mr. Hale left town for his summer vacation, and it was not till fall that he heard the outcome of his experiment. On his return he found a letter from the clergyman awaiting him.

"Thirty carriages were at the wharf when the boat came in," it said, "and all the cooks are satisfactory."—Youth's Companion.

SEES FAULT IN SCIENTISTS

Thinkers of To-Day Lack Imagination, According to Writer in Cassier's Magazine.

Men of science, your faculties are weakened by the very exactitude which is your pride. You measure and weigh, and you are surrounded and overwhelmed by the limitations imposed by the experiences of your senses. You seek causes upon observing effects, or determine the effects resulting from given causes; but such analyses do not lead you into the realm of imagination. You are too material. If you had been Newton, upon observing the apple fall, you would have thought, "The reason why it fell was because its stem became too weak to hold it." Newton, however, had no imagination, and thereby he discovered the law of gravitation, declares a writer in Cassier's Magazine. Columbus did not care to prove simply that the earth was round. His imagination fired him with a knowledge of benefits to mankind resulting from a possible (and, as it turned out, chimerical) northwest passage due to such roundness. His imagination inspired the discovery of a continent. And so it is with name after name in history, and so it will be with you and me. We may achieve some small measure of success by doing what our fathers did before us, but our really big deeds will be offspring of our imaginations. Sometimes we see inventions accomplished by chance or a benefit opened to mankind by a stumbling footstep. Such are rare, and shiftless we should be did we count upon circumstances for success.

To Loosen Articles.

If tumblers become fixed, tap gently round with another tumbler, and, like magic, they will come apart. If a glass stopper is fixed, tap round with another, and it will be loosened. You will always have the same result. The rule is, tap each article with another of a similar kind.

Success Comes to the Patient. To learn how to wait is the great secret of success.—DeMaistre.

Idea by No Means New.

As early as 1786 the French government granted a sum of money to establish a balloon service between Paris and Marseilles, with what were known as the Montgolfier air balloons, though the project never became more than a project.

State of Michigan, the Probate Court for the County of Van Buren. At a session of said court, held at the probate office in the village of Paw Paw, in said county, on the 27th day of April, A. D. 1910. Present, Hon. David Anderson, Judge of probate. In the matter of the estate of John Q. Streator, deceased. Henry D. Streator, having filed in said court an instrument in writing purporting to be a duly executed copy of the last will and testament of said deceased, and the record admitting the same to probate in the state of Ohio and his petition praying that said will be allowed, filed, and recorded, and that the administration of said estate be granted to said petitioner or to some other suitable person: It is ordered that the 23rd day of May, A. D. 1910, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition. It is further ordered, that public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in The True Northerner, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county. DAVID ANDERSON, Judge of Probate.

KEEP PEGGING AWAY

Copyright Hart Schaffner & Marx

For many years brave men have sought, Through bands of ice with dangers fraught, To reach that desolate Arctic goal, And nail the flag to the north pole. Persistence has won out at last, For Commodore Peary nailed it fast. "The Great Clothing Success" is not so slow. Though we don't strike those lands of snow, Nevertheless we have won a name, By keeping at it—being game. We've been nailing, and many stores Have "Hart, Schaffner & Marx over their doors. So this little verse simply shows What we have done with the H. S. & M. clothes.
